

Expanded Novel KL2 Mini- Symposia Proposal

Now Accepting Rolling Applications

GHUCCTS is expanding our successful novel KL2 mini-symposium program by engaging translationally-focused early-stage investigators (ESIs) across our hub institutions to organize mini-symposia, tailored to their own research interests with goals of internal and external networking, building new collaborative and mentoring relationships across and beyond our Hub, increasing local recognition of multidisciplinary translational research efforts and highlighting translational science principles across our Hub

Eligibility & Requirements:

- Early Stage Investigators
- Must be US citizen, Non-Citizen National, or Permanent Resident.
- Must have a full-time faculty or equivalent appointment at a GHUCCTS institution (Georgetown University, Howard University, or MedStar Health) at the time of award.
